Active Threat: Baseline

This course is designed to give our learners an understanding of the Department of Homeland Security's recommended Run-Hide-Fight response protocols, situational awareness skills, and an understanding of personal decision-making. The Tomahawk team presents this sensitive topic with professionalism and expertise, aiming to empower our participants to safely navigate an active threat situation.

COURSE OVERVIEW

Experience the realities of an active shooter situation and learn what to do

We follow four characters through their everyday lives until an unfortunate event brings them together. This training aims to show the realities of active threat situations, evaluate human decision-making, and provide guidance on how to navigate stressful and threatening situations. While the situation we outline is an active shooter in public place, the Tomahawk curriculum learned apply to any active threat situation that could arise in the places we all live, work, and play.

All of Tomahawk's online trainings are built to reinforce best practices, continuous engagement with your environment, identifying and avoiding potential threats, and understanding your options ahead of time to improve your outcome.
